

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A requesting unit receives application information which is transmitted by an information terminal device, and transmits a content ID to an information storing device based on the application information. A converting unit converts the content received by the information storing device into data in a predetermined format and with a predetermined data rate based on a format ID included in the application information which is received by the information storing device, and distributes the data to the information terminal device via a communication unit.